Body Shortened by Undertaker, He Says

DUBLIN, Ga., Nov. 3.—One of the most peculiar cases ever before the courts here was decided when William Newsome, a negro undertaker, sued Walter Blackshear, a negro, for a balance due on the funeral expenses of his mother. Blackshear's defense was that Newsome furnished a coffin too small for the body and then proceeded to trim down the corpse to fit the coffin. The jury rendered a verdict for the defense.

Bernard Shaw Gets Vote; Joker Favors Tirpitz, Too

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Probably Judge Swann and District Attorney Perkins didn't know yesterday that they were running for the office of district attorney against G. Bernard Shaw, the well-known London playwright and Irish patriot, but such was the case, according to a ballot turned in by a voter in the Eleventh election district of the Twenty-ninth assembly district.

The other persons whom this voter considered most fit to fill the remaining offices were: Supreme court justice, Von Tirpitz; Von Hindenburg, Jim Corfe; Al Reich, Joe Larkin, and Shamus O'Sheal; city court justice, Thomas O'Brien; sheriff, J. P. Morgan; municipal court justice, Jessie Ashley; assemblymen, Elias B. Axtell and Joseph C. Cohen.
